

Johann Ueckermann to lead Embury Institute's Waterfall campus

Embury Institute for Higher Education has appointed Johann Ueckermann as the head of its new Waterfall campus in Midrand. Ueckermann joins Embury from the Curro Aurora school where he held the role of the executive head for four years.

As head of the Waterfall campus, Ueckermann is responsible for decision-making and overall management of the campus. Entering this new position, he brings with him vast experience in the public and independent education sector, as well as expertise in change management and transformation of educational institutions into centres of learning excellence.
