

Say hello to Howard Audio

It's time to make it official. We're excited to announce the relaunch of Howard Music as the new and improved Howard Audio.

Issued by Howard Audio 16 Mar 2015

The change in brand is part of our vision for the company: to provide the best original music, musical direction, sound design and final mixing services in the industry.

All this will be done from Howard Audio's new three-studio facility in Bryanston, which has been designed to be one of the best sounding studios in the country. There, we share the space with leading post production facility - Ministry Of Illusion, ensuring our clients are never far away from the picture and all their visual services.

"I'm really excited about our new change in direction," says Adam. "Our services are more than just music now, and I want Howard Audio to be a reflection of that. Whether it's sound design, final mix, licenced or original music, you can expect us to treat every project with the same level of craft and enthusiasm. It's all audio!"

Along with the new name also comes a new corporate identity. Howard Audio's CI was created with cymatics, a method of visualising sounds through everyday materials.

"My brief to the designers was to create a visual identity that reflected my passion for sound. What they came back with was a way for me to play my logo and make sound a core part of our identity going forward. We had so much fun creating this new CI - literally visualising sound as it distorts my logo."
