

Rogervilco: Responding to the evolution in South Africa's digital marketing landscape

Since its inception in 2008, local agency Rogervilco has been at the forefront of South Africa's digital marketing landscape. Over the years, the company has witnessed the evolution of digital platforms, from the infancy of Facebook and Twitter to the advent of Instagram and the birth of the iOS app store.

In a dynamic digital landscape where change is constant, one thing has remained unwavering: consumers' desire for elegant online experiences. Rogervilco recognised this fundamental truth early on, even before the concept of User Experience (UX) became a mainstream term in the digital customer experience (CX) sphere.

While the company had an intense focus on customer experience in its first decade, it wasn't until 2018 that Rogervilco began to speak the language of digital CX. The subsequent year saw the launch of the company's inaugural research report on South African digital customer experience, with a follow-up report in 2021 that specifically examined CX within South Africa's townships.

This deep dive into the online experiences of South African citizens marked a turning point. Rogervilco subtly repositioned itself, transitioning from being a standard digital marketing agency to a digital CX agency.

What does this repositioning mean?

Rogervilco continues to offer a comprehensive range of digital marketing services but with a renewed emphasis on the end customer experience. The core principle is to ensure that all solutions provided to clients are seamlessly woven together, driven by a singular goal: delivering a consistently elegant experience across all touchpoints, whether it be a banner ad, a social post, a web page, a video, or an email.

This nuanced approach is not confined to client-facing activities. Rogervilco has applied the same philosophy to its internal processes. When a client's project requires input from multiple subject matter experts, these experts collaborate closely on delivery, avoiding silos. The result? A puzzle where every piece fits seamlessly into place.

Understanding digital CX

Digital customer experience (CX) is the essence of how a customer perceives a brand based on all their online interactions with it. In today's omni-channel world, consumers use multiple channels for researching and purchasing products and services. Rogervilco's 2023 CX report highlights that online research influenced over R516bn in physical retail spend, with 67% of consumers reading online reviews before making a purchase.

This underscores the critical importance of digital CX in modern marketing strategies. The quality of digital interactions is paramount; delivering a great online experience cultivates loyalty, repeat business, and word-of-mouth referrals. Conversely, a subpar experience can result in negative reviews, deterring prospective customers.

In a world where information is readily available, and transactions occur at lightning speed, prioritising digital CX can make the difference between securing a sale and losing a potential customer for life.

Rogerwilco's journey from a digital marketing agency to a digital CX agency exemplifies its commitment to elevating South Africa's digital landscape. With an unwavering dedication to providing consistently elegant online experiences, Rogerwilco continues to shape the future of digital marketing in the region.
