

Rwanda's SafeMotos adds female moto-drivers to platform

 By Tom Jackson

8 Mar 2018

Rwanda-based ride hailing startup SafeMotos is marking International Women's Day by adding the first three female moto-drivers to its network.

Image via Disrupt Africa

SafeMotos is smartphone application that allows customers to order safe and professional motos directly to their desired pickup locations.

Until now all drivers on the platform have been male, but SafeMotos launched a US-registered charity – the SafeMotos Institute – in 2017 and crowdsourced funding to allow for the sourcing and training of female moto-taxi drivers.

It has also hired a country manager – Sandrine Nikuze – to establish and run the programme in Rwanda, and received support from Bajaj Rwanda, which provided the motorcycle taxis. SafeMotos is now developing a product that can specifically match female customers with female drivers.

'Moving Rwanda' digital mobility concept kicks off

7 Mar 2018

"We are so proud to have these courageous, confident females who took the initiative to make the impossible possible and become a part of the SafeMotos team," said Barrett Nash, chief executive officer (CEO) and co-founder of SafeMotos.

“Becoming a moto-taxi driver is a way for many people on a step towards economic empowerment and we firmly believe that this should be available to everyone in Rwanda, not just men. We are now working with an additional cohort of 40 women, putting them through training over the coming months to launch a dedicated female moto-driver and customer product in Kigali in 2018.”

ABOUT TOM JACKSON

Co-founder @DisruptAfrica. Tech and business journalist in Africa. Passionate about the vibrant tech startups scene in Africa, Tom can usually be found sniffing out the continent's most exciting new companies and entrepreneurs, funding rounds and any other developments within the growing ecosystem

▫ Rwanda's SafeMotos adds female moto-drivers to platform - 8 Mar 2018

View my profile and articles...

For more, visit: <https://www.bizcommunity.com>