

One Young World Summit 2013

One Young World Summit 2013 saw 1,300 young leaders from around the world descend on Johannesburg to develop solutions to some of society's most pressing global issues.

Global leaders including former UN Secretary General Kofi Annan, Live Aid founder Bob Geldof and Nobel Prize Laureate Muhammad Yunus have called for young people to play a more prominent role in attempts to tackle global issues such as climate change.

For more, visit: <https://www.bizcommunity.com>