- Research and Innovation award was presented to Dr P Rambe: Established Researcher

The categories for best mentors and best outstanding support also got recognition while deserving students received with certificates.

The ceremony is aimed at motivating staff and students to continue pursuing excellence. It is also a testament to the commitment that the faculty has to the quality of teaching and learning, research and innovation practices by staff and students.

“I am delighted to be part of this celebration in honour of the outstanding performance of the staff and students and their contribution the university,” said Prof Frederick Francois (Derik) Coetzee, a keynote speaker at the function.

He said that working with sports teams is an important way to teach accountability and cooperation and that these lessons are equally applicable to any situation such as at CUT where management, all sections and students work together to achieve their institutional goals.

This is not the first time the faculty has shown appreciation of its students and staff for their hard work. Over the years, these awards have grown from strength to strength and have set high standards of achievements for all participants. They are in line with the university’s vision and its academic project to improve the relevance and impact of its programmes.
