

World Architecture Festival Awards announces 2021 shortlist

The World Architecture Festival (WAF) Awards has announced its 2021 shortlist, celebrating buildings and landscapes to have been completed across the globe between 2019 and 2021. The 200-strong shortlist has been selected from over 700 entries from countries ranging from China and Japan to Mexico and Ecuador.

The theme for the 2021 edition of the festival is 'Resetting the city: Greening, health and urbanism'. WAF will reconvene this year in Lisbon at the FIL exhibition centre from 1-3 December.

Presentations of the shortlisted designs will be made to more than 100 international judges in front of festival delegates. Category winners then compete against each other on the final day of the festival to compete for the ultimate accolades of World Building of the Year, Future Project of the Year, Interior of the Year and Landscape of the Year.

"We are delighted with both the quantity and quality of this year's entries. This promises to be the most competitive awards programme we have ever run, and we look forward to meeting the shortlisted architects in Lisbon," said WAF programme director Paul Finch.

The completed buildings Super Jury which will decide the World Building of the Year 2021, includes: Jeanne Gang, founding principal and partner, Studio Gang; Abdelkader Damani, artistic director, Frac Centre-Val de Loire | Biennale d'Architecture d'Orléans; Kim Herforth Nielsen, cofounder and principal, 3XN Architects; and Christina Seilern, principal, Studio Seilern.

The Super Jury for the Landscape of the Year includes: Robert Schäfer, landscape architect and journalist; Brita von Schoenaich, principal, Bradley-Hole Schoenaich Landscape; Lily Jencks, founder, LilyJencksStudio | JencksSquared; Todd Langstaff-Gowan, landscape architect, historian, author and collector, Todd Longstaffe-Gowan Landscape Design.
