

Commvault appoints Richard Gadd as senior vice president for the EMEA and India region

Commvault, a leading enterprise data protection company, has appointed Richard Gadd as the senior vice president for the EMEA and India region (EMEAI). In this role, Gadd will oversee the provision of advanced cyber resilience solutions to global organisations, focusing on safeguarding and recovering data in the face of significant cyber threats.

Gadd possesses a 25-year career in technology sales, including his recent position as VP and general manager for EMEA at Cohesity, where he gained valuable experience in storage and data management. His background also includes senior roles at Hitachi Vantara, EMC, and Computacenter.

For more, visit: <https://www.bizcommunity.com>