Instagram on Tuesday revealed updated settings coming to the platform to help you better manage third-party apps.

Soon, you'll be able to view all your connected apps and websites under the "Security" tab in Settings.

"From there, you'll have the option to remove any third-party services you no longer want connected to your Instagram account," Instagram explained on its blog.

Additionally, a new "authorisation screen" will also appear when you're linking a new app to Instagram to show you what information it will have access to.

"You'll have the option to 'cancel' or 'authorise' this access directly from the authorisation screen," the company said.

According to Instagram, the new features will roll out over the next six months.

Earlier this month, the company also launched a Restrict feature to help curb online bullying.

Hi "Name", "AppName" is requesting to do the following:

Access your profile info
username, account type

Access your media
caption, media count, media type,
media url, permalink, timestamp,
thumbnail

Cancel

Authorize

You should only allow third-party applications that you trust and understand how they will use this information about you. See their Privacy Policy and Terms. You can remove this app at any time by visiting your Settings.
