Known as one of the seven wonders of the world, the annual great wildebeest migration in Kenya and Tanzania is truly nature's greatest spectacle.

Every year, approximately 1.7 million wildebeest, 400,000 Thomson's gazelle, 300,000 zebras and 12,000 eland will take a survival journey from the Serengeti National Park towards the Masai Mara National Reserve in search of better grass and water resources. Along the way, the massive herds will have to cross Nile-crocodile infested rivers and keep a keen eye out of opportunistic predators such as lions, leopards and cheetahs.

If you'd like to experience this natural phenomenon, here are 16 reasons why you should see the Great Migration in 2016:

The drama and intensity of a river crossing. A sight and experience to behold. Starts August 2016 - limited space available. Don't miss out. #repost @apextribune.com "One of 'Seven Natural Wonders' and it's truly a spectacular display of nature traveling through the circle of life." "Nowhere in the world is there a movement of animals as large as the migration of Africa's millions of wildebeest and other grazing herbivores. They trace a clockwise circuit of East Africa's great grassland plains, following the rain and the ripening grasses. It is one of nature's sights that has never ceased to amaze." #wildlife #wildebeest #thegreatmigration #beautiful #naturelovers #wildlife_perfection #instanature #crossing #serengeti #mara #tanzania #natgeowild #safari #wildebeestmigration #brutal #nature #wildlifeplanet #sevenwonders #crocodile #africa A photo posted by Neeraj Sinha (@psychos_ocial) on Apr 16, 2016 at 11:50am PDT
